Westerly Fire Inspection Saturday

To be Followed by Annual Parade—Drug Fiend Apprehended—Morphine and Causes Trouble—Louis J. Reuter Leads in Holiday Shoot—Prize Essay Medals on View.

Plans are complete for the annual inspection and parade of the Westerly fire department Saturday. In the morning the fire house will be open for public inspection of the apparatus, general equipment and quarters of the Alert Hook & Ladder company, the Rhode Island Ones and the Cyclones. Members of each of the companies will be present to receive visitors and act as guides in a general explanation of all that goes to make up the life of the volunteer firemen. In the afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the procession will form in Broad street and proceed over the usual line of march, under the direction of Chief Engineer Samuel G. Cottrell, assisted by the other members of the board of firemen.

The Westerly Veteran Firemen's association did not accept the customary invitation to participate in the parade, and therefore only the three active fire organizations of the department will be in line, with the fire police and board of engineers and the Westerly band. The firemen will have in the parade their apparatus which consists of two steam fire engines, two motor-driven hose wagons, a hook and ladder truck. This is perhaps the last parade in which the hook and ladder truck will be of the horse-drawn type.

After the parade Chief Cottrell and his assistants of the several fire companies will entertain at their quarters.

The order of procession and line of march will be as follows: Westerly Fire Police; Westerly band; board of engineers; Cyclone Engine company.

The dope fiend must have his dope at any cost and will not hesitate to steal to satisfy the appetite that craves and kills. All sorts of schemes are worked to get even an eighth of a grain dose of the drug through legal channels and when this fails the fiend stops at nothing to appease his craving appetite.

Here's a case that happened in Westerly Tuesday evening. A well-dressed man went into the Rhode Island Pharmacy when the clerks were busy attending to patrons. When the stranger's turn came he purchased an article that required adjustment in private, and said to the clerk that the doctor had told him that there would be no objection to making the adjustment in the back room, or prescription department of the drug store. Although it was against the rule of the store, the clerk was permitted to go into the back room. An hour afterwards it was discovered that he had stolen an eighth of an ounce bottle of morphine solution. It was all of the drug there was in the store, and when a prescription came in that required an eighth of a grain in the compounding, the morphine was misused.

This drug can be secured by druggists only on orders in special government blank and its disposition must be recorded in the drug store. In this particular case, Manager Higgins must go before a notary and make oath that the drug was stolen together with affidavit that the theft has been reported to the local police. The value of the morphine stolen was about one dollar.

Carranza Demands Recall of Troops

ments of the United States and Mexico.

"This government must consider this last act a violation of its sovereignty and as in the most urgent manner that the Washington government consider with care the case and once for all define with exactitude the policy it intends to pursue with respect to the Mexican situation. To the end of making clearer the basis upon which the petition contained in the present note is founded, it is necessary to state the facts which have occurred up to this time as a result of the incursion of a band at Columbus, N. M., captured by Francisco Villa, at dawn, March 9, last.

Mexican Laments Frontier Raids.

"The Mexican government, sincere in lamenting the happening and with the idea of efficiently protecting the frontier, proposed that the governments of Mexico and the United States celebrate an agreement by which bandits might be punished. Furthermore, the Mexican government made this proposition guided by precedents prevailing in the years 1880 and 1884, and concretely asked permission that Mexican forces might cross the American frontier in pursuit of bandits under the reciprocal condition that like permission would be granted the forces of the United States, should a case similar to that of Columbus be repeated at any other point along the frontier line.

Good Intentions of Mexican Government.

"As a consequence of this proposition made in the Mexican note of March 10, the United States government, through error and precipitation, thought that the good intention of the Mexican government was to authorize it to cross the frontier and without awaiting a formal agreement ordered a large party of Americans to enter into pursuit of Villa and his party. Because of this act, the American government made more emphatic protestations that it was acting in good faith and that its only purpose in crossing the line was to pursue, capture or destroy the Villa band and that the act did not signify an invasion of our territory nor an attempt to violate the sovereignty of Mexico and that as soon as a practical result was shown by this expedition, the American troops would be withdrawn from Mexican territory.

Entry of Troops Not Authorized.

"The Mexican government had no knowledge that American troops had crossed the border until March 17 and this came from private sources in El Paso. This government then directed a note to the American government, stating that inasmuch as no formal agreement had been entered into between the two governments, the American government was not authorized to send such an expedition.

"The Washington government explained the sending of such an expedition as a preventive measure against the attitude of the Mexican government regarding the passage of troops across the frontier in pursuit of Villa and his forces. It was pointed out that the former interchanges without further formalities.

"The government of the United States explained also that its attitude was taken in view of the necessity for rapid action and explained its willingness to receive any suggestions of the Mexican government relative to a formal agreement for the crossing of the international line by forces of either country.

What Mexican Government Insisted Upon.

"Both governments then hastened to define terms of an agreement. The projects of the Mexican government and two counter-projects of the American government being exchanged. In discussing the agreement, the Mexican government insisted constantly that the operation of troops in a foreign country must be limited as to the number of soldiers, the class of arms and the territory occupied.

"The American government refused to agree on these points, but in its last note presented to this government, agreed to accept in part these limitations, nevertheless, insisting that they be not applied to the Columbus expedition.

"This attitude of the American government caused the Mexican government to send a note under date of April 12, suspending negotiations for any agreement in view of the fact that the American government demanded the withdrawal of American troops from the territory of Mexico, should they be excluded and requested the retirement of the American troops, as they were in Mexico under no agreement, and as a further reason, because the Villa bandits had been dispersed and reduced to impotency.

U. S. Did Not Answer Note.

"Meanwhile, the American government did not answer the note of April 12, nor withdraw the troops, and it was found convenient by both countries that a convention of military chiefs meet at some border place in order to treat on the military aspect and ascertain if by this road it were possible to arrive at a satisfactory solution, which on Mexico's part consisted in the retirement of the American troops from its territory.

"To this effect, there met at Ciudad Juarez and El Paso, on the part of the American government, Generals Scott and Punston and on the part of the Mexican government, the secretary of war and navy, General Obregon, who held a series of conferences in a spirit of frank cordiality.

HOW THE NOTE WAS RECEIVED IN WASHINGTON

Belief Prevails That Troops Will Not Be Withdrawn.

Washington, May 31.—General Carranza's latest note, bluntly questioning the good faith of the United States and, with a threat of armed resistance, demanding withdrawal of American troops from Mexico, was presented today by Eliseo Arredondo, the Mexican ambassador here. Tonight a translation of the voluminous document, about 12,000 words long, was laid before President Wilson, who at once began considering how it should be answered.

No one in official circles would attempt to forecast just what course the president might decide upon. There was complete unanimity, however, in the belief that there would be no immediate withdrawal of American troops which entered Mexico after the Huasteca raid, was brought to Washington Monday by Manuel Mendez, an attaché of the Mexican foreign office. Word of its coming had been received last week, but on Mendez's arrival he insisted that he knew nothing of it and merely was in the United States on a vacation. Arredondo said last night that he had heard nothing of a note.

Today it was explained that Mendez left Mexico City with strict instructions to keep the purpose of his visit secret even from the embassy here until he had communicated with the foreign office on reaching Washington. His orders to give the communication to the ambassador-designate, for presentation to the state department, it was said, did not arrive until about midnight last night.
